Diploma Supplement

This Diploma Supplement model was developed by the European Commission, Council of Europe and UNESCO/CEPES. The purpose of the supplement is to provide sufficient independent data to improve the international 'transparency' and fair academic and professional recognition of qualifications (diplomas, degrees, certificates etc.). It is designed to provide a description of the nature, level, context, content and status of the studies that were pursued and successfully completed by the individual named on the original qualification to which this supplement is appended. It should be free from any value judgements, equivalence statements or suggestions about recognition. Information in all eight sections should be provided. Where information is not provided, an explanation should give the reason why.

The main focus of this programme of studies is to provide a solid foundation in all of the key areas related to the transfer of linguistically coded information from one source language and culture into one or more target languages and cultures. The qualifications obtained through this programme prepare graduates to assume professional responsibilities in the broad domains of language, culture and translation for one or two languages (depending on the specific programme chosen). The degree ensures the acquisition of fundamental knowledge and competence in these domains, as well as familiarity with methodological and theoretical reflection. Hence, in addition to representing an initial professional degree, it also provides the basis and prerequisites for further university studies in a master's degree programme.
